leslie lampert 2015 notes while concurrent program execution had been considered for years the computer science of concurrency began with edsgar dijkstra s seminal 1965 paper that introduced the mutual exclusion problem the ensuing decades have seen a huge growth of interest in concurrency particularly in distributed systems, concurrent programming in java creating threads 1 - it is impossible to categorize all the ways to exploit the functionality associated with threads but two general approaches can be distinguished by their points of view on the statement, doug lea s workstation - doug lea s
